Published: Oct 1, 2018

Effective for dates of service on and after January 28, 2019, the following updates will apply to the AIM Specialty Health© (AIM), clinical appropriateness guidelines: advanced imaging appropriate use criteria: imaging of the heart. AIM is a separate company.

Carotid duplex ultrasound

- Criteria removed for evaluation of syncope in patients with suspected extracranial arterial disease
- New criteria address evaluation of TAVR (TAVI) in patients with suspected or established extracranial arterial disease

Myocardial perfusion imaging (MPI), stress echocardiography, cardiac PET, and coronary CT angiography (CCTA)

- Clarifications address exercise-induced syncope and exercise-induced dizziness, lightheadedness or near syncope in symptomatic patients with suspected coronary artery disease

MPI, stress echocardiography, cardiac PET

- Criteria added to allow annual surveillance of coronary artery disease in patients with established CAD post-cardiac transplant
- Clarified definition of established coronary artery disease when diagnosed by CCTA
 - more restrictive for patients diagnosed with coronary artery disease by prior coronary angiography, as FFR must be ≤ 0.8
 - more permissive for patients diagnosed with coronary artery disease by CCTA with FFR ≤ 0.8 (patients previously excluded)

Resting transthoracic echocardiography (TTE)

- New criteria for evaluation of ventricular function in patients who have undergone cardiac transplantation

Cardiac MRI

- New criteria allows for annual study to quantify cardiac iron load in chronically ill patients with cardiomyopathy who require frequent blood transfusions (e.g., thalassemia)

New Hampshire Provider Communications

- Removed allowance for annual LV function evaluation when echocardiography is suboptimal
